LYNELLE L. BROWN

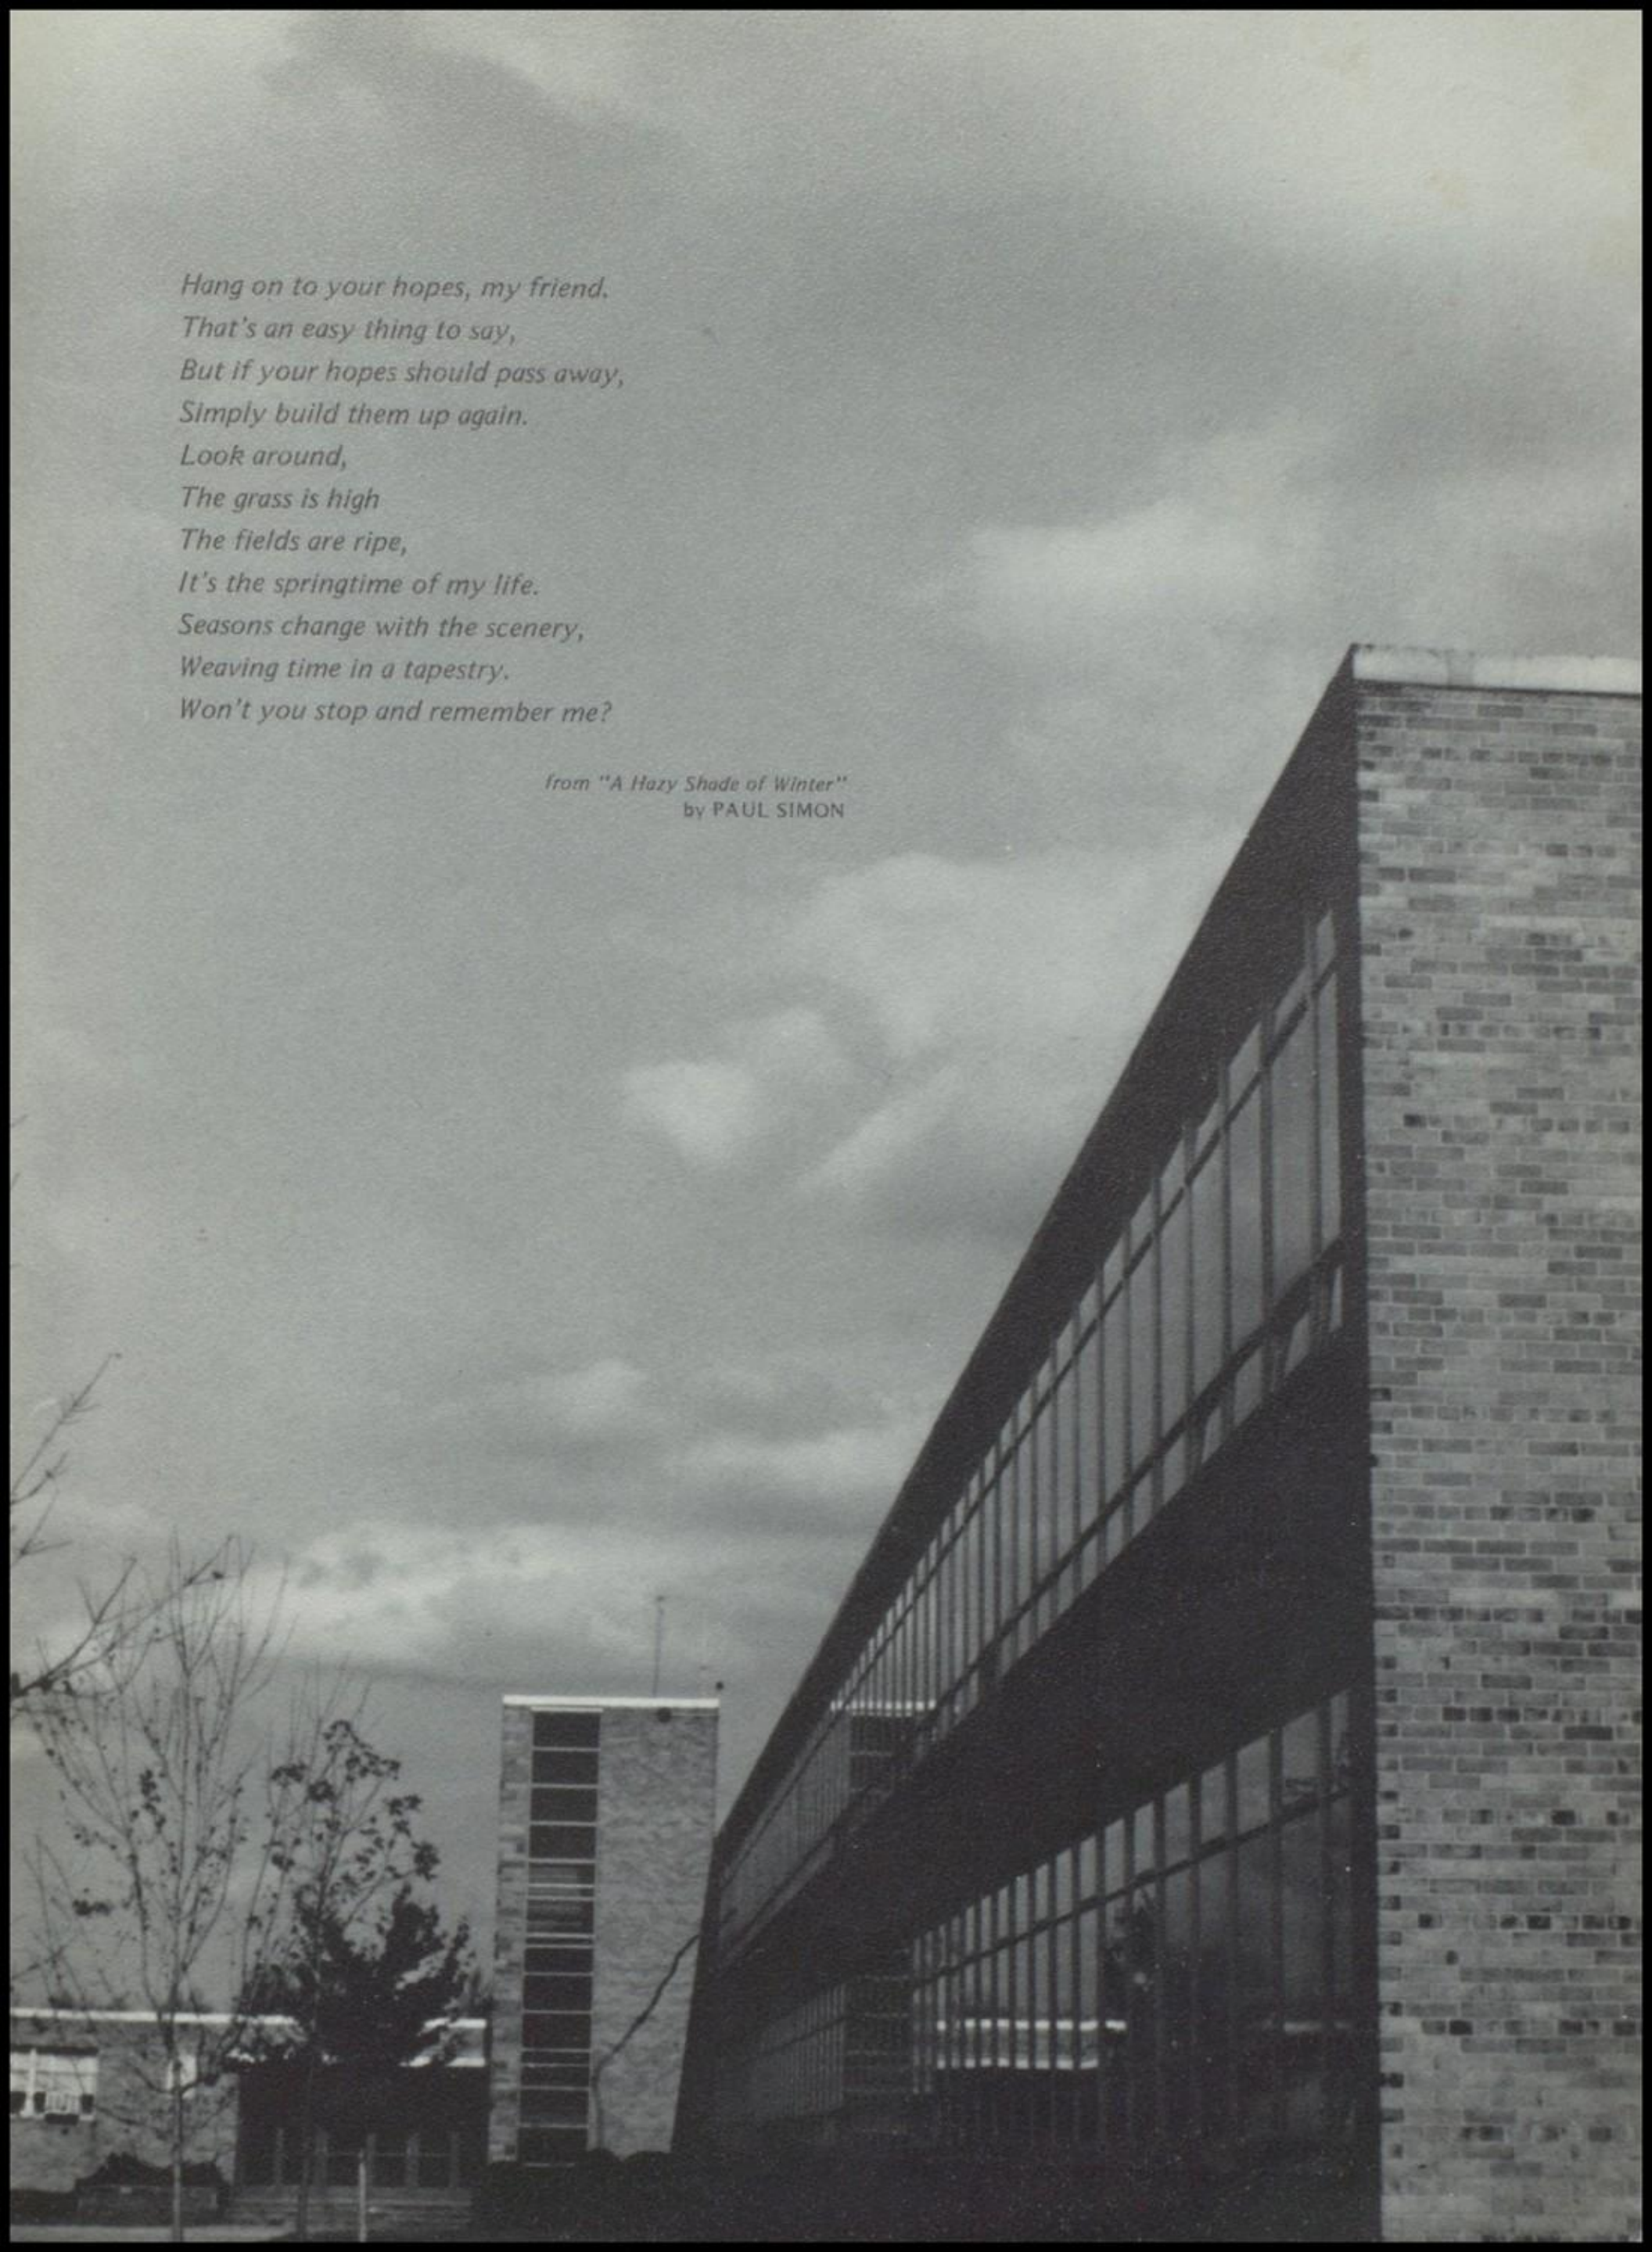

*Hang on to your hopes, my friend,
That's an easy thing to say,
But if your hopes should pass away,
Simply build them up again.
Look around,
The grass is high
The fields are ripe,
It's the springtime of my life.
Seasons change with the scenery,
Weaving time in a tapestry.
Won't you stop and remember me?*

For his gentle patience and never-failing unselfishness in giving of himself that each of us may grow as students and as individuals

For his special touch of humor in the classroom which has enabled so many of us to see ourselves, our work, and our problems in positive perspective

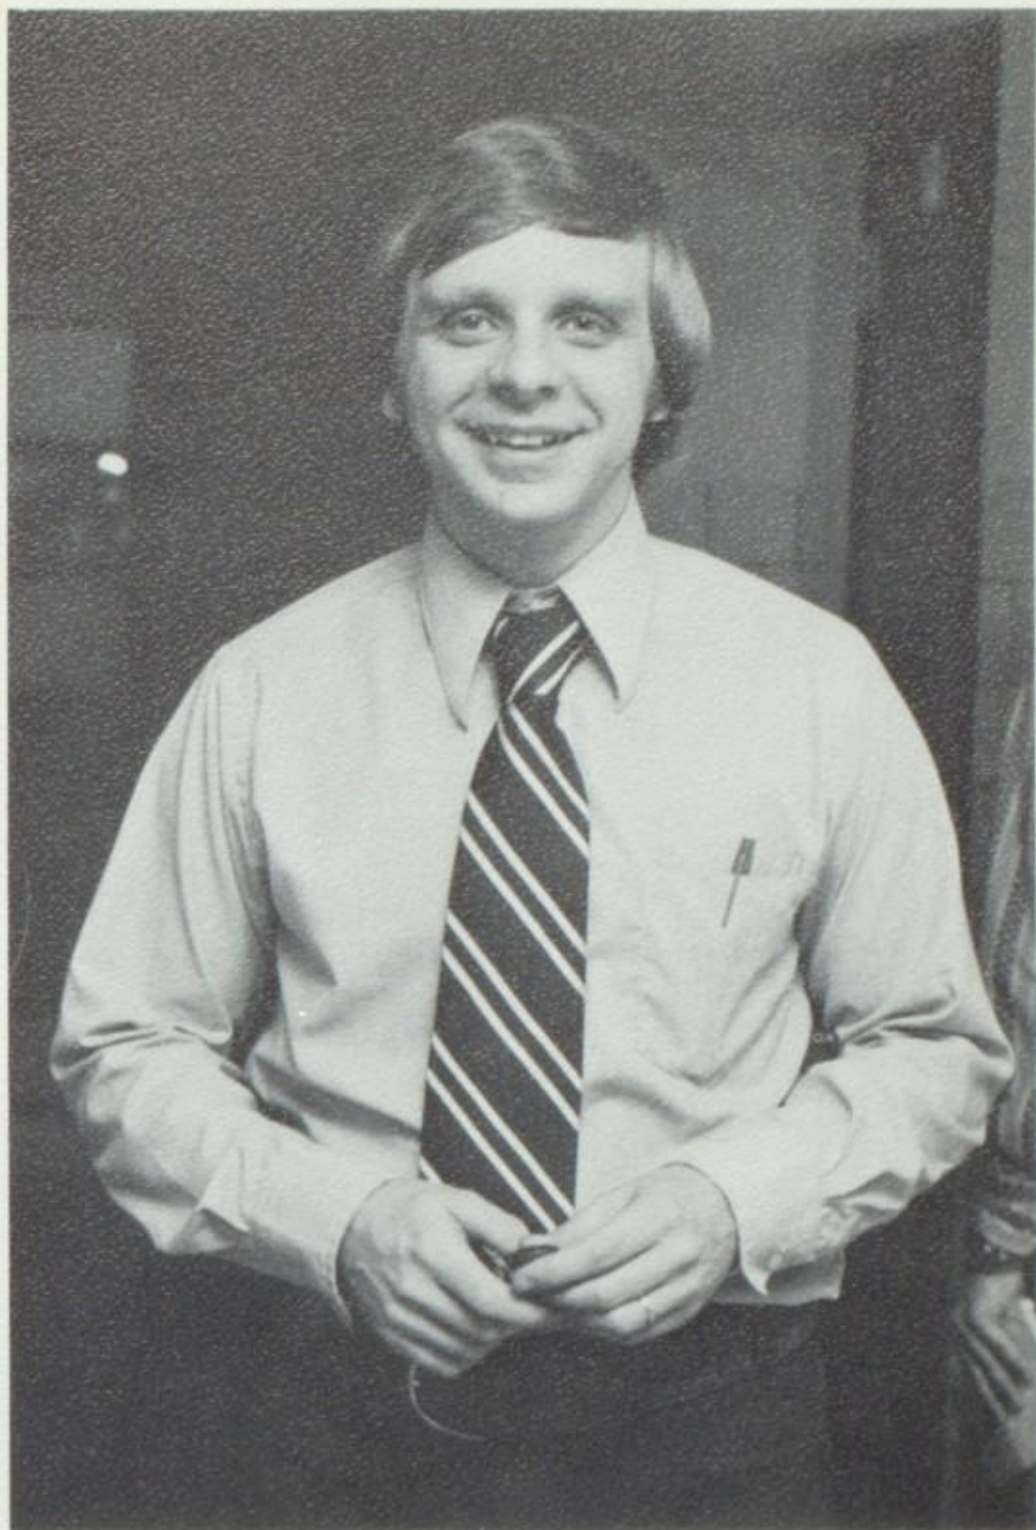

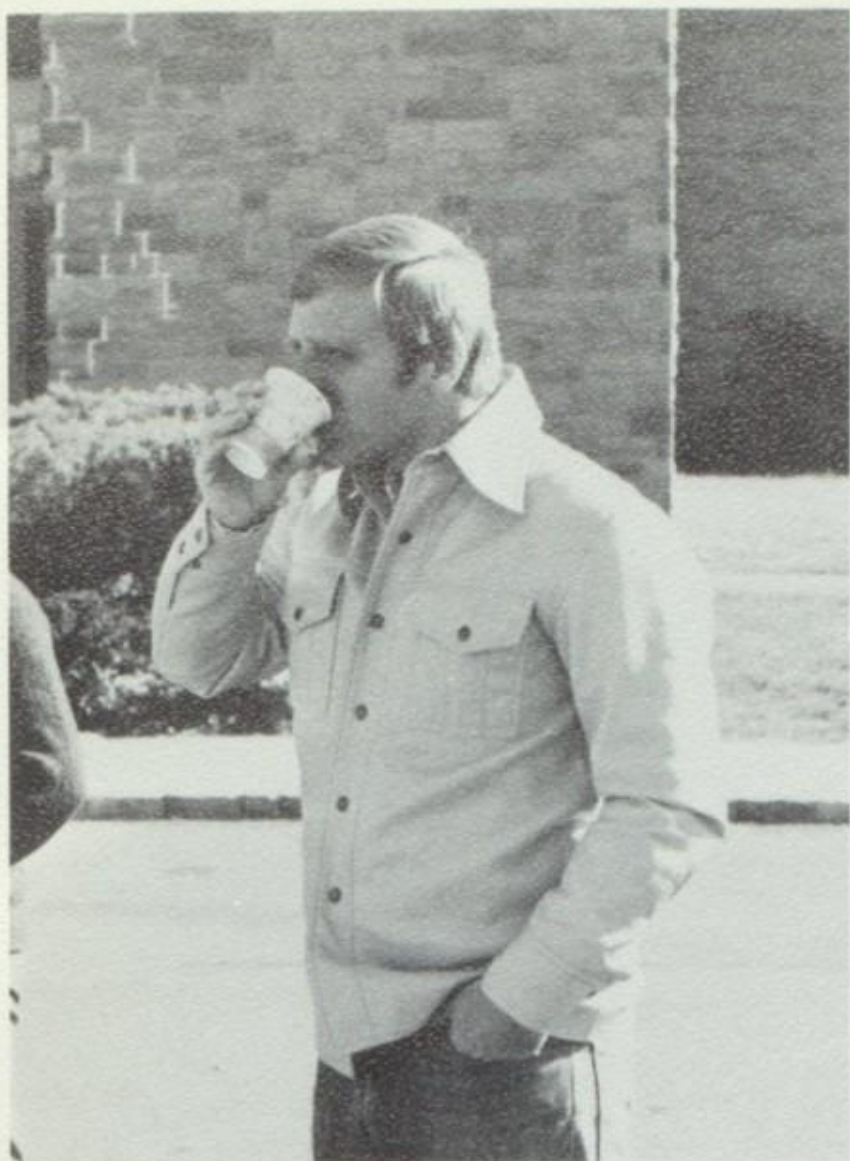

For bringing all of his varied teaching subject matter to life with his own vitality and rich background of scholarship

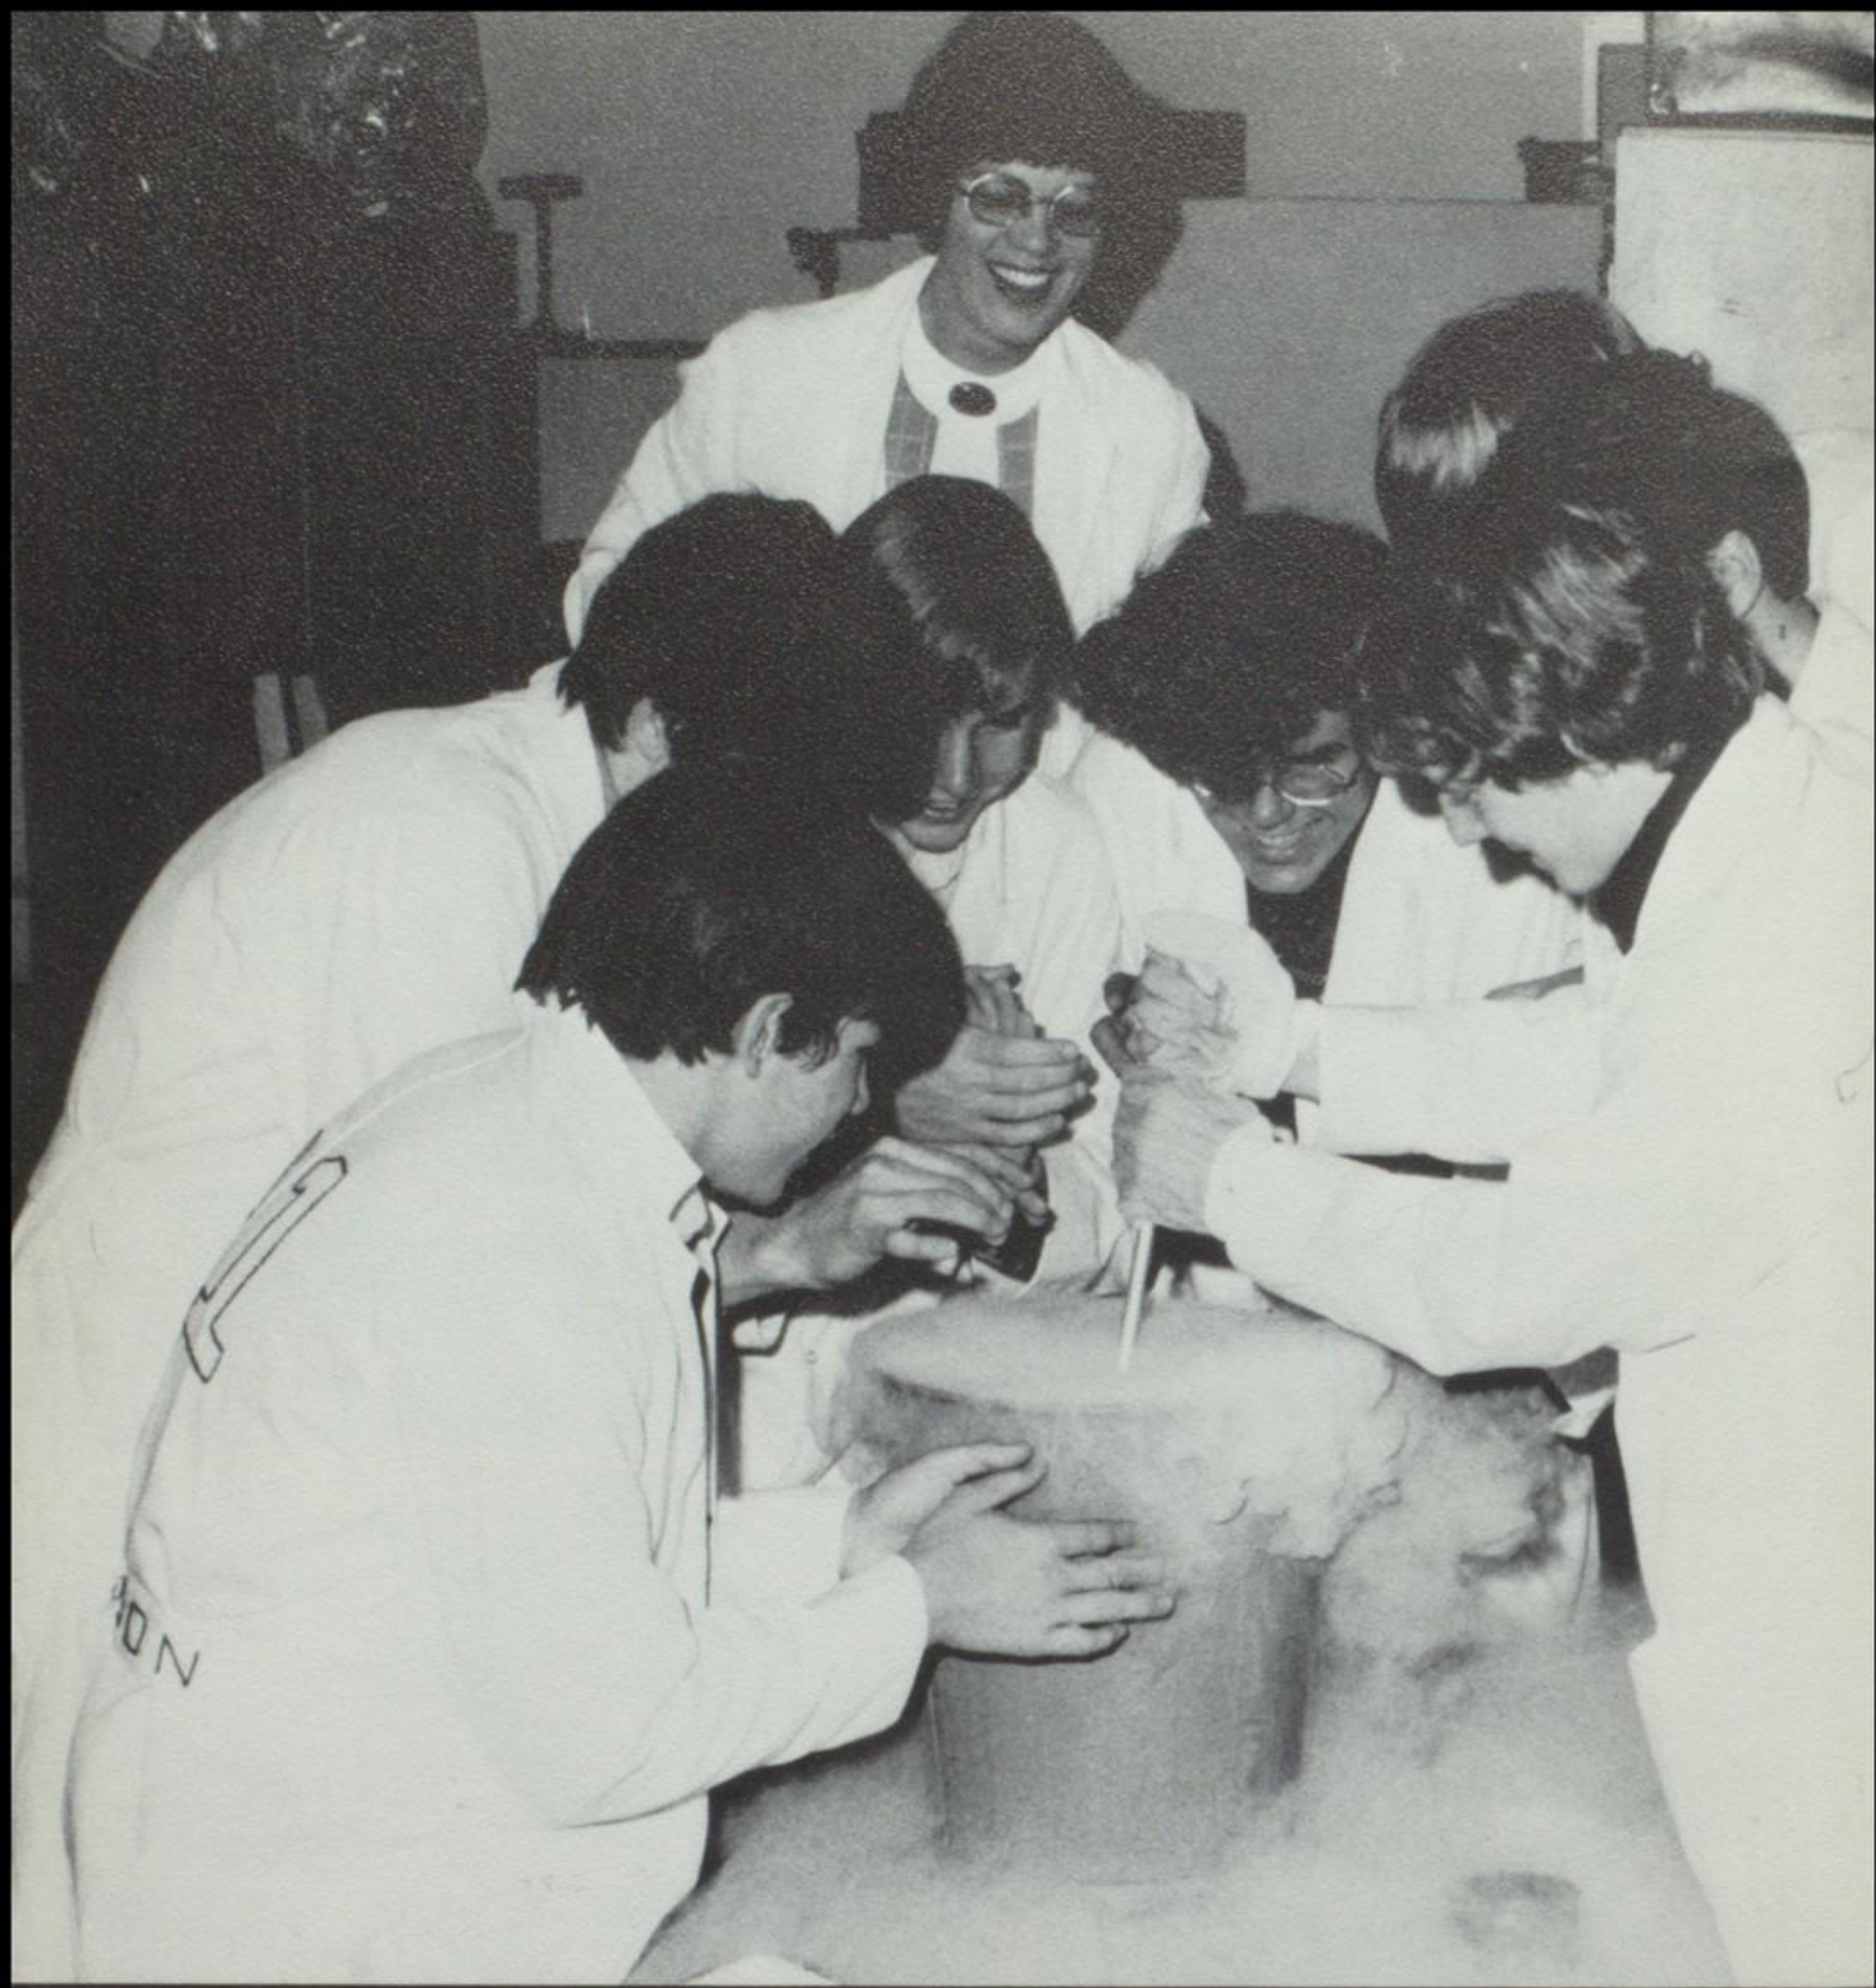

For the inspirational example he invariably sets in speech, demeanor, and academic preparation

For his wisdom, experience, and friendship as daily Advisor in the challenging task of recording and depicting the history of the Class of 1975 in this, ours and his, 1975 Chatter

We, the Class of 1975, proudly dedicate our yearbook to Prom at the Manor ... Splash party at Minisink ... and Graduation ...

People are drawn closely together during the last days before a final parting. It is then that you discover those who were revealed partially to you. You and your friends have grown up throughout the past four years more than you do in any other part of your life. School is to not only educate you, but to introduce you to the ideas and values of other people. The versatility of high school is never fully appreciated until you walk out the doors for the last time.

Each of your friends will leave school with a piece of your personality in their hearts. The memories of the times you've shared are captured in everyone's minds. You will be a part of their lives, as they will be a part of yours. Old friendships will gradually fade into new ones, but none will be lost. Take advantage of the bond that ties our class at this time, for with graduation comes the separation of us for a bright future.

In Memoriam

VICTORIA LUPINO
*As seasons change and time goes by,
 We walk with uncertainty in our lives;
 And every moment life is flowing,
 Death comes creeping never knowing,
 Striking someone close and dear;
 That of whom we speak of here,
 And though she's very far away,
 Her memory will last from day to day.*

Exit the King shows the King as "everyman" experiencing the joys and sorrows of life for all of us. As he dies, he learns one thing as his universe "flickers out" — that life is wonderful and should be lived to the fullest.

Long run — 7 sold out performances ... how do you get that junk off? ... Peter's lips, Anet's eyes, K's neck ... funky far out ... how do you feel, Jeff? ... army boots ... Drama freaks streaked ... Pam's wearing green knee socks ... quick call a plumber, there's a leak ... "It's so normal to be abnormal, there's no such thing as abnormality."

Innovations Make Better CHS Journal Staff Shows Initiative

No newspaper can ever be truly outstanding unless it constantly improves its design and layout. The '74-'75 period saw many innovations formulated by editors Cowell and Lunetta, along with the advisor Miss McColgan, and carried out under their constant direction.

Subheads, clearly corresponding continued lines, and liberal use of photos were some examples of minor changes in the "Box's" design; others included a move to two- or three-deck headlines, columns headed off with continuing art boxes, standardized by-lines, kickers, and ears on the masthead.

Major revolutions were such variations as a full tabloid size, counted headlines, and modern article layout. All changes can be summed up as a massive transition towards the modern, professional journalistic procedures.

Preparation Story Told

COPY STAFF — (seated) J. Nicolais, art editor Dave Gude, B. Almgren, G. Beaumont; (standing) J. Hubbard, J. Hassinger, L. Brown.

The monthly job of putting out the Chatterbox was only half through when the copy from reporters was turned in, hopefully by the deadline, since typing, copyreading, paste-up, and proofing still had to be done.

Helping the editors in this task were such willing typists as Jeanne Oxley, Gail Beaumont, Beth Almgren, Trish Mahoney, Jane Collins, Carolyn Orben, Becky Hubbard, Merri Mansley, Ann Scally, and Jeff Fleming, after copy editor Penny Taylor had run copyreading sessions with staffers Joan Nicolais, Sallie Howell, and others.

Paste-up meetings took the longest but the omnipresent cutters, gluers, and planners Joe Barmakian, Val Viarengo, Denise Pappas, Bill Cooper, Eric Johnson, Janet Hubbard, Sue Melly, and Dave Gude insured the accurate preparation of dummies for the printer, despite many long meetings extending late into the night, under the direction of the slave-driving editors Chip Cowell and Patty Lunetta.

ADVISOR Miss McColgan

Photos, Artwork Improve Appearance

A newspaper would certainly be incomplete without art and photos. Working hard to produce quality issues were editors Dave Gude, art, and Joe Barmakian, photography, who controlled a staff, consisting of Lyn Brown, Jon Hassinger, Rob White, Caroline Blanken, and Gordon Redgate, with much skill and foresight.

Clear, well-taken photos combined with witty artwork helped to brighten up the paper's layout and make it truly outstanding.

Reporters Write News, Features; Staff Talents Singled Out

Keeping the newspaper full of monthly news stories, features, and editorials was never easy for the burgeoning staff of 70. Assignments were often tough and much legwork was necessary in a short amount of time.

Steadfast senior reporters included the dependable trio of Sue Scribner, Lisa Hartigan, and Janet Hubbard. Often taking on two or three assignments, these writers always turned out "clean copy," on topics ranging from homework helpers to senior proms.

A host of talented freshmen reporters filled out the Chatterbox columns with well-written and researched stories of all aspects of school life dealing with such subjects as AFS events to candystripping: Debbie W. Williams, Joelle Frahn, Carolyn Orben, Frank Haas, Bill Cooper, Sue Melly, Jane Collins, Mike Gess, Mary Ann Tuggle, Amy Mann, and Sue Sanne.

Editorialists Ann Gregory, Peter Melly, and Wayne Smith often stirred controversy with their provocative and lambasting satires on school problems and situations ranging from the lunch improvement campaign to smoking posters and the honor roll system.

Juniors, too, penned articles for the "Box's" pages; Karen King, Pam Rich, Rick Ahsler, Mary Ellen Williams, Bruce Spidell, Eric Johnson, Anita Broderick, Ginny Bell, and Bob Haas always had stories to provide on such challenging subjects as state education spending and school history as well as more commonplace yet nonetheless necessary topics as school events and career possibilities.

Other well-versed writers included Pam Ciriote, known for her witty satires on school life; Jeanne Oxley and Val Viarengo, always hard-working and punctual; Mike Nicolais and Doug Behre, skilled senior reporters; Mary Jane Potter, a talented writer with clear insight; Abby Archer and Annette Pelosi, reporters with a ken of newspaper lore; Martha Mulvihill and Daryl Savage, talented sophomores with a good grasp of journalism; and Debbie Smith, who penned many an interesting story.

Outstanding stories of the year included "A Groggy Day," "View From the Bottom," "Chatterbox Poll," "You Call That Food," "Looking Into the Past," "Cafeteria Criteria," and "Pumpkin Patch," as well as numerous research articles which revealed much nostalgia and CHS history.

Writers Record Sports Events

SPORTS STAFF

Sports writing never lacked talent in the 1974-75 school year. With such skilled editors as junior Bill Deatly and senior Denise Pappas at the helm, the "back page" was often the best-planned part of the paper.

In addition to the columnists, Ginny Bell, Anita Broderick, Kevin Morison, Randy Rosenberger, and Peter Martine filled out the last page with incisive, penetrating accounts of sports events, kept alive with professional language and good expression.

Outstanding ideas for the year included a conference sports ranking, sports sidelight articles, and numerous pictures.

Facilities Allow Improvements

Although any organization depends on its staff more than anything else, good facilities always improve it.

Through enthusiastic administration support, the Chatterbox acquired much equipment during the school year which enabled it to produce a publication of high quality.

Columnists Pen Varied Accounts

SCRIBES — (back row) P. Lunetta, J. Holt, J. Barmakian, P. Minde; (seated) F. Courtney, V. Viarengo, A. Pelosi, J. Pfitzenmayer.

The Chatterbox's inside feature pages this year always saw special interests for the various groups of students at CHS. Heading the list were monthly columns which provided much information dealing with specialized areas.

Peter Minde, Jeff Holt, Diane Young, Bob Rumsey, Dave Browne, Jeff Dodge, and Jeff Cochran penned the always unusual "Rockin' On" column, while Jill Pfitzenmayer

Year Encapsulated

A terse capsule of a year's work on the "Box":

The Golden Rule — Stick to the Stylebook ... Keep on looking, Sue ... The blue-ink relic or the modern deafener, your choice ... "The deadline was a week ago, but you're not too late" ... "What's the Board of Ed. going to say?" ... "How many pages this time?" ... reduce size to fit ... "Keep the rubber cement off the carpet, Bill" ... NO by-line ... "Any news, Ms.?" ... reporter's reduction formula: take requested words and divide by 3 for article length ... FLUSH LEFT ... Proofs — bloody massacre ... Smelly ... "I can only stay 5 minutes" ... Type this up and bring it over in an hour ... deadline diasters ... "Hello, Bob Bebert speaking" ... kickers ... green slips ... "Call for two pizzas, will you?" ... "We're only a little over the budget" ... tissues? ... those summer meetings ... "Didn't we just get assignments last week?" ... collation ... "Why do the editors end up doing everything?!"

In the Chatterbox room, a typewriter, two file cabinets for storing back copies, two tables and matching chairs, as well as a locked wall cabinet and partition for tacking up announcements created a sort of newspaper office with near-at-hand facilities, a great help as the "Box" neared deadlines.

Downstairs a fully equipped darkroom complemented the writing materials upstairs. Complete with dryer, enlarger, and boxes of supplies, the darkroom was a godsend for both Chatter and Chatterbox.

Actual publication took place at Avon, N.J., and the mails thus wreaked havoc on otherwise hopeful predictions for issue dates. Telephone calls often clarified layout innovations.

wrote of astrology in her "Signs of the Stars" account.

"Mind Challengers," a puzzle section, was run by Chip Cowell, while "Chatter from the Box," a tidbit information section of items too short for full articles, was founded by Patty Lunetta; "Senior Spotlight" was handled by Lyn Aljoe and Lisa Paxton, while the informative "Teacher Feature" was recorded each month by Sallie Howell, giving an in-depth look at CHS instructors.

"Sports Stumpers," written by Phil Perone, Bill Deatley's "Sports Shorts," and Joe Barmakian's "TIME-Out" appealed to another segment of CHS society. Annette Pelosi ran the mysterious "Write Side-Up" penmanship feature, while Fara Courtney and Val Viarengo constructed "A Touch of Class," a nostalgic look at CHS experiences.

Production Process Spelled Out

EDITOR-IN-CHIEF Chip Cowell and ASSISTANT EDITOR Patty Lunetta

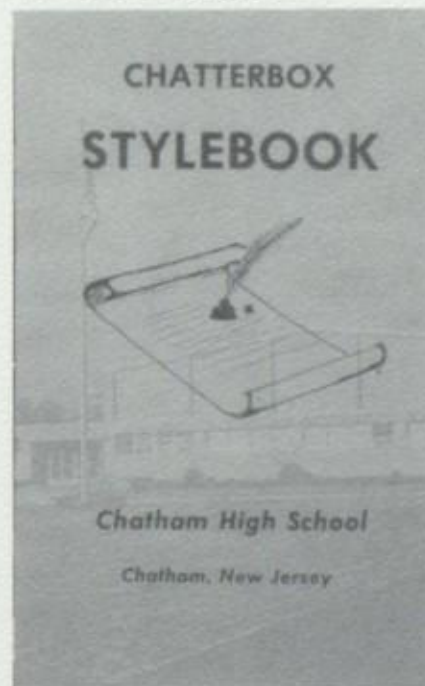

The managing editors' task was perhaps hardest of all. Coordinating a staff of over 70 people was no easy job for editor-in-chief Chip Cowell and assistant editor Patty Lunetta. Without numerous phone calls and contacts in the halls, the newspaper never would have reached the final stages.

Starting with the Board of Review meeting with the 5 other editors, used for determining policies and planning issue content, all the way through to a final "OK" over the phone for rolling the presses, the production required a constant push and drive directed at all the staffers on all aspects of the journal.

Cooperation and communication were the watchwords for a successful Volume XXXIII, from not only the staff and the editors, but also the zealous and highly competent advisor, Miss Margaret McColgan.

Book Gives Rules; Writers Aided

COPY Editor Taylor

Awards Given

Presented awards as outstanding reporters of the year were senior Peter Melly, for his uncanny editorial skill; Lisa Hartigan, for her precise and well-written stories; Sue Melly, for a truly developed journalistic talent; and Eric Johnson for always preparing "clean" and trenchant articles. Jeanne Oxley and Bill Cooper received production awards for assistance above and beyond that put forth by others.

One permanent addition to the CHS publication field was a newspaper stylebook prepared by the editors Cowell, Taylor, Lunetta, and Barmakian, and Lisa Hartigan. This 24-page printed pamphlet delineates the established Chatterbox rules for all aspects of journalism ranging from capitalization to proofreading.

Divided into the four sections of style rules, troublesome words, production procedures, and glossary, the book has been found to be an enormous assistance to both new reporters desiring information and old standbys who want to check on a certain question of grammar.

Clear examples aid the understanding of the rules.

'75 Chatter

Once upon a time there was a hard-working Chatter staff who had Friday night bonfires. One day a question was asked, "Who's got the camera?" and it was soon discovered that the camera had been ruined in a dark room disaster. The marathon printing record now stands well over a hundred and Mrs. Germany is serving Pepperidge Farm cookies with milk, orange juice, or tomato juice. We ate the whole box and the strobe died so we went to Dunkin' Donuts at 4:30 A.M. There were terrific pies but will it ever remain a secret? Then Stanking came to visit and we didn't know his real name so we invited him to a Chatter Dinner and asked him if we would make it all night. Next the Phantom Senior struck again and when we asked him where Nick's flower was he said it was in a locker whose combination was either 9-33-23, 1-9-26, 2-16-7, or 22-37-6. When asked how to spell "hoicky-toicky," he replied that it would only cost 270 dollars and that he would tell us at the Tennis Tournament. Meanwhile, Chiply established a business, but was forced to liquidate when the Great Orange Juice Spill occurred. Oh, hi, Sara(h)! ... Where are you going to school? ... Really, I did their book ... Lyn was sketching a portrait of Lis while Hub served up some sarcasm. Nancy went back into history and Mark was being a real sport while Peluch did a layout with many teeny weeny pictures. Then Joe and Jon were snapping pictures of a magic book and when everything was done we called and said, "I know, but can we have 8 more pages?" Soon after, we got a bug and were sick until we found a ticket to happiness. When the book was all done we were so sad so Joe wrote this crazy story and we wished the Ranger many thanks and a saner '76 staff!

Dear Sally,
I'll never forget our dear old Algebra II class. That time I got an 84 on the last test! I should have done that well throughout the year. Even Miss Endler laughed at the eggplant card. That was a fun class even though my grades weren't fun. This year seemed to go so fast! We'll be seniors and then out of school! Hope I see you more next year.
Best Wishes from the Class of 1976 to the Graduating Class of 1975
Good Luck in all you do!
Love Kathy. Also remember my

It was so great having you
in child care this year
even though you talk every minute sometimes most of the time its interesting. I can't believe how smart you got really though.

LOST & FOUND

Memories of the

'Twas The Night Before Thanksgiving

*'Twas the night before Thanksgiving
And all through the evening
Not a junior was idle,
Not one thought of leaving.*

*The sewers were ready
With needles and threads,
While pushers envisioned them
Piercing their heads.*

*The flowers were sewn
With too little care,
And throughout the wire
There were spots that were bare.*

*With Kenn and his power tools
And Chip and his smoke,
This whole operation
Was no longer a joke.*

*When from the basement
There rose such a clatter,
We all rushed to see
Just what was the matter.*

*The pin-pals weren't pushing —
The fans couldn't sew,
When Bob Murphy announced
Two strikes in a row.*

*We all wrote our postcards
And sent them that day,
In hopes that the jackpot
Would break the same way.*

*Our leader was Peter
He wasn't too quick,
But in the end
He did the trick.*

*More rapid than eagles
His orders they came,
He bossed and he shouted
And called us by name.*

*On Chipper! On Kenner!
On Roby! and Joe!
Work Susie! Push Pammy!
So others may sew!*

*From the end of the float
To the top of the cab,
Mike promised us forty
Only eighteen we had.*

*Up to the windows
The dummies they flew,
And onto the engine
Came Lyn's seal too.*

*And then in a twinkle
Our train came to be,
But how it was done
Is a mystery to me.*

*The engine, Chip's sound,
The whole thing was great,
But it needed one thing
And that Chip could make.*

*We marched to the school
With a confident air,
But our hopes were dampened
By what happened there.*

*Jim lighted the stuff
That gave us the smoke,
But then it caught fire
And we started to choke.*

*We sat at the rally
And cheered loyally,
We hoped and we prayed
That winners we'd be.*

*They called out "Juniors"
We rose in a flash,
And then Peter started
His victory dash.*

*He returned to us all
His smile was bright,
He cried, "Victory to Juniors,"
To Seniors, "Good Night!"*
